Audiology News

Do you or a family member feel that you are missing out on conversations when you are in a group or frequently ask folks to repeat themselves? These are signs of possible hearing loss which can impact relationships with friends and family. If you want to find out how well you are hearing book an appointment with our Audiologist.

We are all about Relationships

Our clinic has made relationships the centre point of all the work we do. By booking appointments to suit your schedule, supporting families in many ways, participating in community events and ensuring our staff are able to work at their best, we are doing our part to create positive relationships inside and outside of our clinic. Our philosophy is that relationships are the foundation of the work we do and we really take this to heart!

Upcoming Plans

Our Speech and Language team have been very busy working in the schools and are now starting to plan for PD Day and March Break Camps. We are also hoping to pilot a Play Language Playgroup program with the Council of Yukon First Nations. These programs have an emphasis on learning important language concepts through play and also involve caregivers in the fun!

We hope to also resume travel to the communities as Covid-19 restrictions are lifted. This will allow our SLPs and Therapy Assistants to see more clients in person rather than on-line, which is really important for relationship building.

Also if you need help with printing a vaccine passport, you are welcome to come to our office for assistance!

Clinic News

As Boreal Clinic has grown so much over the past year, we have hired two staff to help with the business side of things: Marianna Berko is our new Finance Manager and Shivani Pillai is our new Administrative Assistant.

A good relationship starts with good communication.
